This issue of the alumni magazine comes to you among the many holiday greetings and well wishes. As I reflect on this time of year, I always remember a formative experience in my training. I would like to share that story with you.

Charles was admitted to the hospital on a warm sunny afternoon in late July 1975. As the intern on the male teaching unit (male patients and female patient were confined to different geographic areas of the hospital in those days), I was responsible for his evaluation and management. He was admitted to the service of his neighbor, a highly respected medical oncologist, Dr. Anthony Ripepi.

After entering the sunny, semiprivate room, I introduced myself, pulled the curtain, and asked the robust 28 year old man why he had been admitted. He proceeded to relate a story of mild nausea and low back pain. Charles was a very healthy construction worker. In the course of his work, he had lifted a bag of cement and felt pain in his lower back. After a week of symptomatic therapy he continued to have pain, so he spoke with his neighbor, Dr. Ripepi, who ordered a spine x-ray. He was told that there was an abnormality, and was advised to come to the hospital. He also related a history of nausea and anorexia.

As has become my custom, at the completion of the history and physical examination, I asked Charles if there was anything I had failed to ask that he had noticed over the recent past. He related that as a construction worker, he frequently voided in the woods, and in the past two months his urine would produce foam as it hit the ground, and the foam would persist for more than an hour. This complaint puzzled me, for it is an unusual symptom, and occasionally associated with severe proteinuria. Based on his age, I had prematurely leapt to a diagnosis of hyperparathyroidism or sarcoidosis. Desirous of diagnostic parsimony in a young man, I couldn't reconcile why he should have proteinuria. I failed to recognize the obvious clue to a more ominous diagnosis. But my ignorance would last only an hour.

As chance would have it, Charles went quickly to the radiology department. I received a phone call from the radiologist as I was completing the written history and physical examination on my next new patient. He informed me that he did not perform all the x-rays I had ordered, as he had made the diagnosis based on a film of the skull. Charles did not have hyperparathyroidism.

Charles did not have a benign disease. Charles had multiple myeloma.

I was shocked, first at the diagnosis, and then at my diagnostic error in ignoring the key clue of foamy urine. An important lesson, never to ignore a diagnostic clue, was thereafter emblazoned on my diagnostic pathways. But this was merely the first important lesson I learned from Charles.

Dr. Ripepi came to the nurses' station to review my evaluation of Charles. He told me that indeed multiple myeloma was the diagnosis he suspected. He then asked me if I would present Charles with the diagnosis that we both felt was likely. I agreed, but requested his presence with me when I spoke with Charles.

I remember entering the room and sitting down next to his bed, but I don't remember leaving the room. Dr. Ripepi sat next to me, at an angle which would allow him to watch both Charles and me, ready to jump into the conversation if necessary. The overpowering fear of telling a young man that he had a lethal disease engulfed me as I slid into the chair at Charles's bedside.

Charles looked up at both of us, and asked, "Okay, so how long do I have?" He somehow had sensed the severity of the situation, and had broken the ice, possibly looking for reassurances that it wasn't serious, all the while knowing that it was.

Over the next few months, our relationship evolved into openness and candor. Charles shared his fears of death, his desire to live for his wife and three young children, and his enjoyment of working outdoors. He had come from a wealthy family whose money had been made in construction, and he had intended to remain in the hands-on side of the family business. He wanted us to do all that we could to help him for as long as possible. This directive would become extremely important a few months later.

Charles was admitted to the hospital every three to four weeks for chemotherapy. His myeloma was very aggressive. His weight and muscle mass quickly dropped, and he lost much of his hair. Yet his spirit, and that of his wife, never flagged.

As luck would have it, I was on call on Christmas Day. It was a horrible day for me, with many cardiac arrests, and deaths in the emergency room from auto accidents. I walked the halls with a general feeling of despair at the severity of illness I encountered on my first Christmas as a physician and a husband.

At 11:35 PM the cardiac arrest beeper went off again, and I ran to the designated room. I arrived to find a nurse administering mouth to mouth resuscitation to my friend, Charles. He was ashen, without a pulse. We began CPR, and were able to briefly revive him. He looked up at me, and I sensed that he recognized me. He was able to utter a brief sentence. "Tell Marie and the boys that I love them." He lost his pulse, then his consciousness, and we intubated Charles and resumed CPR.

Marie, who was in the room at the time of the event, had been escorted to the lounge by one of the senior nurses. The head nurse and I left the team and went to speak with her, to let her know that it did not appear that he would survive this episode, and to relay his message. I expected her to break down and cry, but she demonstrated tremendous courage and control. She tearfully instructed us to do what we could. She told us that she sensed that he knew his time had come, and that they would be together again in heaven. Then she took my hand, and asked one favor. "Please, don't let him die on Christmas Day. It will take the joy from this day for the boys and me, forever."

I knew then that I could do one more thing for my friend, Charles. I could keep him "alive" just a little longer. I hoped that this would leave his children with only positive memories of their father, preserving Christmas Day as a day of celebration of life rather than remembrance of death.

I returned to the team, and directed them to continue CPR. At first, I could see the questions on their faces. "Why continue in this hopeless situation?" their eyes screamed. As I began to respond, the head nurse, who had accompanied me to the lounge, turned to the others present and said, "You heard the doctor." And we all went about our work for the next 10 minutes.

At 12:05 AM on December 26 I pronounced my friend Charles dead. The nurses and I, despite the tears, sensed that we had done something positive that night. The head nurse, a knowledgeable and compassionate mentor to all the residents, took me aside. She told me that I had taught the others a vital lesson. My role as a physician was not only to cure, but occasionally to orchestrate death.

I obtained permission for, but could not bring myself to attend, Charles's autopsy. I did present his medical history and autopsy findings at Mortality Rounds. Our Chairman, Dr. Frank Luparello, reviewed the rare entity of multiple myeloma in the young. Sensing my attachment to Charles, he also discussed the personal difficulties we encounter when patients, to whom we have a special bond, die. Looking back, this was the first of many important lessons that he taught me on my road to becoming a physician. Another was never to forget our patients.

So I frequently think about Charles, Marie, and especially the boys—most often at Christmas, while I watch my children decorate the tree. I wonder whether we made a difference in that room, whether keeping Charles alive for an additional 10 minutes was ethically appropriate. And I wonder why I felt an inner sense of peace and happiness mixed with the enormous sadness at the moment of Charles's death. It is a feeling that I have felt again and again when present at a person's death. Not only the sense of relief from suffering, but of newfound happiness; the fragility of human life contrasted with the strength of the individual soul. And I wonder. Is it merely my personal feeling, or is it a spiritual presence nearby?

Their boys would be in their early thirties now. Maybe they have children. I hope Marie tells their grandchildren stories about their grandfather. And I wonder whether, perhaps, our efforts that night in some small way have kept Christmas happy for Charles's and Marie's children and grandchildren.

I hope so.

As we ponder the things that are important to us, and give thanks to our own individual God, Yahweh, Allah, or other higher spiritual being, let us give thanks for the gift we have been given to heal, to ameliorate pain, and to shepherd persons through this journey we call life.

Please accept, from all the faculty, staff, residents, and students our heartfelt wishes for a happy holiday, and a new year filled with health and opportunities to serve.

Early Anesthesiology Research and Jeffersonians

by J. Woodrow Savacool '38

Joseph L. Seltzer '71, past Chairman of Jefferson's Department of Anesthesiology, was intrigued by the lead article in the March 2000 issue of the Bulletin of Anesthesia History in which Kitz and Lowenstein detailed recent discoveries about the career of a Jefferson alumnus, Henry Isaiah Dorr '1883. It is gratifying to add his story to Jefferson's rich collection.

Dorr's entrance to dental practice was halting and difficult. Born in 1844, orphaned at age six and a runaway at eight, he falsified his age and enlisted in the Northern Army in the Civil War at age 15. After service in combat for three years, he was discharged and then faced the future without any educational qualifications for achieving his personal goal to study medicine, which had developed during military service. He worked at several jobs but was making slow progress when he was persuaded by a dentist for whom he had worked to study dentistry. He entered Harvard as a dental student (1869-70), did not graduate but began the practice of dentistry (practicing without graduating was common in that era). He was successful, but overwork was given as the reason for his removal from New England to California for a period of rest.

In 1875, he returned to the East and stopped in Philadelphia where he decided to enroll in Philadelphia Dental College. He was awarded a degree of Doctor of Dental Surgery in 1876. The same year he joined the faculty, advanced to Adjunct Professor and in 1878 to Professor of Practical Dentistry, a new professorship. His increasing interest in anesthesia during the 1880s led to his appointment to a new chair as Professor of Practical Dentistry, Anesthetics, and Anesthesia later the same year.

This appointment as a Professor of Anesthesia is the first on record. Kitz and Lowenstein state: "It seems appropriate that this, the first appointment of its kind in the world, was awarded to a person who was both a physician and a dentist, given the important role dentists played in the discovery of anesthesia and the aspirations of patients and practitioners for painless dentistry."

Dorr, having become financially able and academically located, pursued his original goal of a doctorate in medicine. He entered Jefferson Medical College in 1881, and received his MD in 1883 at age 39. This appeared to stimulate his enthusiasm for anesthesia and enabled him to participate in certain experimental uses of nitrous oxide, oxygen, and ether in dental procedures.

As he continued his academic and professional duties through the year 1896, the student body at Philadelphia Dental increased from about 100, when he joined the faculty, to over 400. There is evidence that he participated actively in administrative affairs as well, but in 1906 an apparent tension arose, possibly related to his not being appointed to the deanship, and he resigned his chair. His subsequent course is not well known but if he continued dental practice at all it must have been for brief and intermittent periods. He did travel and exhibited investment skills which provided funds for numerous philanthropic purposes. He appeared to regard Philadelphia as his home, the Girard Trust Company having been appointed his executor, but he also spent much time in New England and died there in April 1927.

The Henry I. Dorr Professorship at Temple University

Dr. Dorr's relation to the Temple School of Dentistry began with the incorporation of the Philadelphia Dental College into Temple in 1907, but the first evidence of a signal association occurred with the awarding of an honorary degree of Doctor of Science in 1924. At that time he established and funded the Henry Isaiah Dorr Prize for the best final examination in anesthesia. During the next few years he provided additional funds which, along with a bequest, established the Henry Isaiah Dorr Chair of Research and Teaching on Dental Science. The Dorr Fund remains in place at Temple, marked by a plaque to the benefactor in that School of Dentistry's first floor lobby.

The Henry I. Dorr Chair at Harvard

It is likely that Dorr's plans for bequests to both Temple and Harvard were considered for some time and even discussed with relatives. In 1910, he first inquired of Harvard's president if a bequest would be acceptable for a Chair of Research and Teaching in Anesthetics and Anesthesia, and received a positive reply. In his next letter to President Lowell, Dorr specified the probable amount of the bequest with this statement: "In the consideration of the amount I should provide for the proposed Chair, I am guided somewhat by the recent gift of $60,000 to establish Samuel D. Gross of Surgery in the Jefferson Medical College of Philadelphia, now occupied by the great surgeon, Dr. Costa [sic]." Continuing negotiations resulted in the establishment of the chair as early as 1917, but following Dorr's death numerous changes were suggested and it was revealed that if Harvard did not establish the chair, the net income from the funds would be paid to Jefferson Medical College. He thus remembered his Jefferson association, but only as an alternative, and Harvard did receive the bequest which had been augmented to a total of $265,000. Over the years with some changes in its management and some additions, the Dorr Fund had escalated to $2,251,722 by April 1999. Harvard claims the Dorr fund as the first endowed chair in anesthesia (1917) while the first professorship in anesthesia was established in 1937 at Oxford University.

Jefferson's Howard Bradshaw and the Dorr Fund

Another Jefferson connection surfaced in the way Harvard employed its Dorr Fund. During the early decades of the 20th century, the teaching of anesthesia had been largely the responsibility of surgery departments. This was the case at Harvard until the 1930s when the acquisition of funds specifically for a professor of anesthesia led to a discussion regarding their appropriate use. The matter of provision of laboratory facilities for the incumbent was the subject of a meeting between Dean Edsall and Professor of Surgery Edward D. Churchill who agreed that a full time teacher-investigator would most closely fulfill the intent of the donor. They took note of Dr. Howard A. Bradshaw, a 1927 Jefferson graduate had come to Harvard as a fellow in surgery at Massachusetts General Hospital in 1932, following a two year Jefferson internship and a chief residency at Philadelphia's Presbyterian Hospital. Bradshaw had already been trained in pulmonary physiology and appeared to be a suitable candidate for the anesthesia post.

Grunwald Is Appointed to the Chairmanship in Anesthesiology

He was accordingly appointed Research Fellow in Anesthesia and Chief Anesthetist at Massachusetts General Hospital. He went on to develop a research program in which he was later joined by Dr. Henry Knowles Beecher, a senior surgical house officer. In 1936 Bradshaw requested permission to return to surgery, and Beecher succeeded him as anesthetist at MGH and Instructor in Anesthesia at Harvard under the Dorr Fund. In 1941, the department was formally organized with Beecher as the first incumbent of the Henry I. Dorr Professorship in Anesthesia and Anesthetics. Bradshaw changed his course in favor of a career in thoracic surgery, and on completion of his full time surgical fellowship he returned to Jefferson in late 1936.

Bradshaw made rapid progress at Jeff, contributing advances in the field especially through his teaching of pulmonary physiology which he had researched at Harvard. As time went on, however, he was recruited by other schools and in 1941, attracted by greater funding for research, he accepted an appointment at the Bowman Gray School of Medicine at Winston-Salem, North Carolina, as Professor of Surgery. His achievements there became widely recognized.

Dr. Dorr's contributions to academia and practical anesthesiology are summarized by Kitz and Lowenstein. They acknowledge a dearth of information about Dorr's career and his course after retirement, but note a few writings which indicate his commitment to research and teaching in dental anesthesia as well as to general philanthropic causes. In 1922 he and Theodore D. Castro DDS published a paper in the American Journal of Surgery discussing the development of postgraduate programs in anesthesia for dentists, and describing in some detail course material and clinical instruction. Dorr had also written a comment in the Pennsylvania Medical Journal in 1918 decrying a ruling by the Pennsylvania Attorney General that "anesthetists need not be physicians." All evidence points toward solid achievement which entitled Dorr to memorials and honors for his benefactions.

Temple acknowledged him in several later events for his gifts and bequest to Temple. He was feted on Ether Day on October 14, 1922 "at a dinner given by 15 dental colleagues" (Kitz and Lowenstein) and on October 28, 1925, the Associated Anesthetists of the United States and Canada presented him with a ceremonial bowl. For some years Dorr Day was celebrated at the Temple University School of Dentistry.

Zvi Grunwald MD has been named Chairman of Anesthesiology, as well as the James D. Wentzler '46 Professor. He is the first to hold an endowed chair in anesthesiology at Jefferson. Recently, he had been serving as acting chair of the department.

"Dr. Grunwald brings experience and strength in both educational and research. We are confident of his ability as a leader," said Thomas J. Nasca '75, Dean of the Medical College.

Dr. Grunwald's areas of interest include neonatal anesthesia, the pharmacology of anesthetics in pediatric patients, and the application of business models to improve operating room efficiency.

He began his career with a fellowship in pediatric anesthesiology and critical care medicine at the Children's Hospital of Philadelphia, following a residency in anesthesiology at the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania. He first joined the Department of Anesthesiology at Thomas Jefferson University as an Assistant Professor in 1989. In 1990, he returned to Israel as the first dually specialized pediatric anesthesiologist and laid foundations for the development of that specialty, directing cardiac anesthesia for complex congenital heart diseases at the Beilinson Medical Center in Petah-Tikva.

Board certified in pediatrics and anesthesiology, Dr. Grunwald served as the Director of Liver and Kidney Transplantation Services in the Department of Anesthesiology and Critical Care Medicine at the Children's Hospital of Philadelphia from 1992 to 1994, and as Chair of Anesthesiology at the Rabin Medical Center, Petah-Tikva, Israel, from 1995 to 1996.

A true pioneer in the field of transplant anesthesia, he directed the anesthesia for the first liver transplants at the University of Pennsylvania and the Children's Hospital of Philadelphia, as well as the first successful pediatric and adult liver transplants in leading medical centers in Israel.

He returned to Jefferson in 1997 as Executive Vice Chair of Anesthesiology and was appointed Acting Chair last year. He has been a board examiner on the Israeli Board of Anesthesiology and a member of the education committee for the Association of Anesthesia Clinical Directors. He is the author of many abstracts, book chapters, and articles in such journals as Anesthesiology, The Lancet, and International Pediatrics.

Marone Honored for His Involvement in Establishing the Spinal Cord Injury Center

The Regional Spinal Cord Injury Center at Jefferson marked its 25th anniversary at the Geoffrey Lance Foundation's fourth annual "Journey to Recovery" dinner on Thursday, October 9, and recognized Jefferson orthopaedic surgeon Phillip J. Marone '57 for his contributions in establishing the federally designated spinal cord injury center. Dr. Marone was team physician for the Philadelphia Phillies from 1973 to 1999, and a Professor of Orthopaedic Surgery at Jefferson.

Dr. Marone says he began thinking of the needs of spinal cord injury patients while completing a year in physical medicine and rehabilitation at New York University in 1960, during his orthopaedic surgery residency, at the suggestion of Anthony DePalma '29, former Chair of Orthopaedic Surgery at Jefferson.

"That is where I saw people, young people, who were viable ambulatory people and all of a sudden something happened," recalls Dr. Marone, who is now Associate Dean for Alumni Relations and Executive Director of the Alumni Association of Jefferson Medical College. "They became paralyzed either from their neck down or from the waist down." Upon returning to Jefferson, Dr. Marone was encouraged by then Chair of Orthopaedic Surgery, John Gartland S'44, to become more involved in the American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgeons, and became a member of the academy's rehabilitation committee. It was there that he first thought about having a spinal cord injury center at Jefferson Hospital.

"I would go to meetings and hear about a center in California. I'd hear about Florida. I'd hear about Boston. I'd hear about Denver," he says, noting that there were only five federally designated centers at that time. "I went to then Director of the Hospital, Frank Sweeney, and said, 'Frank, you know that in this area there is no spinal cord injury center. What do you think about it?'"

Don Walker

Sweeney agreed and a committee was formed and included Drs. Marone and John F. Ditunno Jr. MD, Professor of Rehabilitation Medicine and now project director of Jefferson's Regional Spinal Cord Injury Center, as well as orthopaedic surgeon Jerome Cotler '52, neurosurgeon Jewell Osterholm MD, and rehabilitation medicine specialist William Staas '62, who became the center's Co-Associate Director for ongoing care.

The committee was eventually able to secure a grant from the National Institute on Disability and Rehabilitation Research in the U.S. Department of Education's Office of Special Education and Rehabilitative Services, to help establish the center in 1978.

Just as importantly, the committee members were able to convince the City of Philadelphia's managing director to have spinal cord injury cases directed to Jefferson by city fire and rescue personnel.

Dr. Marone is very pleased with how the center has grown. "We have good people involved," he says. "We've gone from no one formally trained in spinal injury to five or six (orthopaedic surgeons, neurosurgeons, and rehabilitation physicians); that is, fellowship-trained beyond their residency."

"The best option for a patient with a spinal cord injury and his family is to be able to go to an established, reputable model center that offers a comprehensive system of care for the injured, along with counseling and support services for the entire family," says Dr. Ditunno. "And it is because of physicians like Phil Marone that these patients in Philadelphia and the surrounding area have such a facility." JMC

Forrest Lumpkin Jr. of Dallas, who has been retired since 1993, is very involved in the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School where he has established the Vera and Forrest Lumpkin Surgical Lectureship in honor of his parents.

George W. O'Brien of Sacramento, CA and his wife Marcia came to Jefferson's campus in September, visiting many old spots including the site of the AKK house near 11th and Spruce Streets.

'53
Thurman Gillespy Jr. is in a full time orthopaedic practice, with surgery being mostly total joints and spine. He is in a six-man group in Daytona Beach, FL which includes his sons, Albert '82 and Mark '86. They all reside in Ormond Beach.

Henry Kane of Wilmington, DE is working part time at the Nemours Cardiac Center at the Alfred I. duPont Hospital for Children.

'56
James S. McCaughan Jr. of Galena, OH has been active over the years in research on photodynamic therapy for malignant tumors. These techniques are gradually becoming more widespread at major teaching hospitals, including Jefferson. Dr. McCaughan's articles have appeared in various journals including The Annals of Thoracic Surgery and The Journal of Thoracic and Cardiovascular Surgery.

Posthumous Honor for George Burnett '28

On July 29, 2003, the Pediatric Department of the Lancaster (Pennsylvania) General Hospital announced the rededication of the annual pediatrics prize given to the rotating family practice resident who exhibits excellence in pediatrics. This honor is now called the George W. Burnett MD Memorial Prize in honor of the late Dr. Burnett, a member of Jefferson's Class of '28. He had been on the staff at that hospital from 1946 until his retirement in 1982. Dr. Hilary Becker, Chairman of the Department of Pediatrics, and Dr. Albert Price (Jefferson '59) presided over the dedication ceremony which included remarks made by physicians who remembered Dr. Burnett, his former patients, and his family.

Dr. Burnett graduated from Jefferson Medical College in 1928, married, and returned to Western Pennsylvania where he spent seven years in general practice. He was then accepted for pediatric residency training in two of the most competitive programs in the country—Children's Hospital of Philadelphia and Johns Hopkins Hospital. This was no small feat at the time since single house officers were preferred. Though stipends at that time were low, he completed his training and was certified by the American Board of Pediatrics in 1940. Dr. Burnett then was accepted for membership in the American College of Physicians, which included few pediatricians in its membership. It is remarkable that 21 years after his retirement he was honored in this way—a reflection of the longlasting influence of his personality.

Joseph Purvis '76 of Berwyn, PA (second from right), Executive Director of Development for Oncology at AstraZeneca, helped contribute to the fight against breast cancer this past August in Belarus, in conjunction with the U.S. State Department's "Operation Provide Hope" and CitiHope International. Due to the severe financial difficulties faced by the Belarus government, it has been nearly impossible for its Ministry of Health to purchase adequate supplies of a variety of medicines, making this aid package necessary. During his trip, Dr. Purvis visited several hospitals to lecture, and shared information with Belarussian oncologists on hormonal therapy for breast cancer, as well as other recent achievements in breast and prostate cancer treatment.

John Prehatny of Wynnewood, PA has accepted a position in the Department of Surgery at Drexel University College of Medicine as Special Project Manager. He will assist the Department of Surgery and the College of Medicine in its restructuring and reorganization programs.

'58
John Rightor of Oil City, PA retired from general practice in October 2003 after 44 years.

Alumni Spotlight: Robert Berry

Robert E. Berry graduated from Jefferson in 1955 after being elected to the Alpha Omega Alpha Honor Medical Society in 1954, fulfilling his dream of becoming a doctor. His family had ties to the Methodist Church and a Methodist Church scholarship helped with his undergraduate education while a Methodist Crusade Scholarship helped him at Jefferson. Without these scholarships, he admits, it would have been difficult to achieve his goal of becoming a surgeon. This charitable experience fostered in him a lifetime commitment of giving back and of using his talents in the service of others.

Bob Berry was accepted into Jefferson's surgical residency program and was awarded a National Institutes of Health Clinical Training Fellowship, 1959-60. Board certification in both surgery and thoracic surgery in 1961 was followed by election to Fellowship in the American College of Surgeons. Bob has fond memories of his Jefferson days and credits Drs. George Willauer and John H. Gibbon with teaching him to become an expert surgeon. He joined the staffs at both Jefferson and Methodist Hospitals. His years at Methodist Hospital were particularly memorable and he credits Drs. John DeTuerk, George Schwartz, Tito Ranieri, and David Y. P. Lin with helping him become a better and more complete surgeon.

Bob Berry always was cognizant of the need to give back for the assistance he received from the church. He, his wife, Margaret, and three small children journeyed to Nepal in 1962 to work with the United Mission at Shanta Bhawan Hospital in Kathmandu. For most of this five year period, Bob Berry was the only certified surgeon to care for the surgical needs of 10 million Nepalese. He reports that his days were busy but happy, and his caseload was more often heavy than light. His mentoring from Dr. Gibbon paid dividends when he performed a closed mitral commisurotomy on a Hindu sadhu, the first heart surgery performed in Nepal as far as he knows. This case was presented at the first Nepal Medical Association meeting and was published in the initial issue of the Nepal Medical Journal.

The American Mount Everest Expedition of 1963 used Dr. Berry as their base camp doctor. The October 1963 issue of National Geographic contains a picture of Dr. Berry treating two experienced climbing team members for frostbite. Bob Berry looks back on his five years in Nepal as full of unique surgical problems, humbling experiences, and wonderful Nepalese friendships.

After returning to Philadelphia, Bob Berry resumed his Jefferson faculty appointment and his surgical practice at Jefferson and Methodist Hospitals. He was appointed Director of Medical Education at Methodist Hospital, a position he enjoyed. He was recruited to Roanoke, VA in 1971 to become Chief of Surgery and Director of Surgical Education in a new surgical program at the Roanoke Memorial Hospital, an affiliate of the Medical School of the University of Virginia, a position that carried with it an academic appointment at the University of Virginia. He remained in this position for the next 25 years during which this new program became very well regarded, developed a Level One trauma center, added a cancer center, and began a noninvasive vascular diagnostic center with the first scanning equipment in Virginia.

Author of numerous publications, Dr. Robert Berry has served as Chairman of the Development Committee of the American College of Surgeons and as President of both the Virginia Surgical Society and the Association for Program Directors in Surgery. Dr. Berry served as editor-in-chief of the 1955 Jefferson Clinic yearbook and he chose these words from that book to summarize his beliefs: "We should not be miserly, but give freely of this gift which we have received. We must give through our service, our teaching, and our everyday life. Only then we will be worthy of the heritage which is ours. Only then will men say when they speak of us, he's a Jeff man!" Jefferson salutes Dr. Bob Berry's dedication to service, congratulates him on his distinguished career, and thanks him for bringing distinction and honor to Jefferson Medical College.

"The Fortunate Beneficiaries of Our Education"

Richard P. Wenzel '65 was recognized at the Alumni Banquet on October 10 with the Alumni Association's highest honor, the Achievement Award. (In the photo at right, he is congratulated by John J. Gartland S'44, Chair of the Achievement Award Committee.)

After his Jefferson education, and a residency in internal medicine and a fellowship in infectious diseases at the University of Maryland, Dr. Wenzel was recruited to the University of Virginia as an Assistant Professor. His career in hospital epidemiology began at the University of Virginia where he developed the first statewide system for monitoring nosocomial infections and the first master's program in the country in hospital epidemiology. After earning a Master of Science degree at the University of London's School Hygiene and Tropical Medicine in 1986, he was recruited to the University of Iowa to direct their Division of Clinical Epidemiology. In 1995 Dr. Wenzel accepted the chairmanship of the Department of Medicine at the Medical College of Virginia, a part of Virginia Commonwealth University and, now, is the William Branch Potter Professor and Chair. His funded research has focused on the epidemiology of hospital-acquired infections, especially bloodstream infections. Dr. Wenzel is now considered by many authorities to be the leading infectious disease epidemiologist in the country.

The author of over 400 scientific papers and the recipient of numerous awards, he has educated over 50 fellows to date, most of whom have stayed in academic medicine. In November 2001, the National Institutes of Health announced that Dr. Richard Wenzel was one of the 10 "great teachers" identified in the 2001-2002 series on Contemporary Teachers. At their 2001 meeting, the American College of Physicians awarded Richard Wenzel the designation of Master.

Remarks by Dr. Wenzel:

When one is honored for one's accomplishments, one is the fortunate beneficiary of his education. Many of the skills and the critical thinking that have enriched my career were nurtured at Jefferson.

Ken Goodner was Professor and Chair of the Department of Microbiology and an iconoclastic teacher of mine who made a difference. Goodner was playful, yet with serious goals in mind. After the morning lecture we students always retired to the lab where a quiz awaited us, often a Gram stain under the microscope and a series of questions related to the bacteria we viewed. One day he had his team of animated colleagues turn the slide upside down on the microscope's stage, and if one failed to realize that there was a reason why the Gram stain would not come into focus, we might not consider pulling out the slide and rotating it properly under the lens. Goodner challenged his young wards to question the assumptions!

For my part, I love what I do as an academic physician, and I am invested in passing on many of the traditions of Jefferson to my students, because in concert with research and clinical care, teaching is a major mission of an academic medical institution. No academic center can be preeminent without outstanding teachers, and such gifted men and women are a measure of a university's quality.

From the perspective of students, great teachers perturb our thinking—primarily not by examining our information base, but by challenging our assumptions. They question the status quo, they create doubt about long held beliefs and understandings. They engage us in debate and offer us no comfortable harbor in the quest for new ideas. In a process leading to new perspectives, they transform us from passive to active participants in the journey to knowledge and wisdom.

Yet, that is just the beginning, the preparation for what follows. For great teachers fundamentally alter the lives of their students. Just when we thought we knew the way, an uncharted path appears in our vision—foreign, more unusual, more exciting, daunting but more meaningful. Suddenly and unexpectedly, we change directions. Ken Goodner sent me to the Philippines for three months of my senior year where I saw 100 cases of acute cholera each day, and a dramatic epidemic of hemorrhagic fever. He drastically changed my life and career options.

Today the teaching model used in U.S. medical schools is still very much influenced by the great, early 20th century internist, Sir William Osler. He was the first Chairman of Medicine at Johns Hopkins and later Regis Professor at Oxford. Osler considered both the preparation and the experience to be independently valuable. He likened learning to new voyage: to experience clinical medicine and patient care without reading was like going to sea without charts; but merely to read about medicine and not manage patients was like never going to sea at all. At Jefferson I found oceans of clinical opportunities and a wealth of charts.

Most academics today lament the small amount of time allotted for teaching their students. However, some education experts, like psychologist David Barash, say that it is possible to mar teaching by an overzealous desire to impart all that we know. I agree and I think of the wisdom of poet and playwright Bertold Brecht. To paraphrase Brecht, the goal of inquiry is not to open the doors to everlasting wisdom, but to close the doors to everlasting ignorance.

Furthermore, those who seek to cram in all the facts for students inadvertently suggest that everything important is already understood. Here at Jefferson, my teachers like Goodner, Bob Mandle, and Harry Smith not only outlined the antics of microbes but also highlighted the careers of great investigators who had made important scientific discoveries because of what questions they had asked.

In the last 10 years, there has been a revolution in teaching, spurred by computers and the Internet. Think of your own experience in the past: a great teacher was well read and imparted vast amounts of information that was not easily accessible to eager students. Today the students don't seek information; it's at their fingertips, literally on the palm pilots which they carry on rounds. Students currently hold more information in their hands than any team of teachers could possibly impart.

However, where is perspective? Where is the exception to the rule found, where is the intersection of medicine and ethics? Where are empathy, excitement, mystery, and passion? In a word, where is wisdom? This is the talent required of the 21st century teacher, a significantly new challenge well beyond the recitation of information.

Lastly one might pause and ask, why do great teachers enjoy their gift? I think the answer is a closely guarded secret: great teachers know that the most effective way to learn—to know—is to teach. Our students—those who are the targets for learning—in fact by their questions, become the source of knowledge for their teachers. Simply stated, we who teach are the beneficiaries of our inquisitive students. We should thank them for enriching our careers and our daily lives.

Tonight, I have received a great honor for my accomplishments in research, scholarship, and teaching, and I have suggested that the foundation for my good fortune began with role models at Jefferson. Despite noting the bureaucratic dragons that roam the halls of every institution, my own teachers didn't allow those barriers to interfere with the mission of education. They stayed the course. When they needed to, they smashed those dragons on the head, focusing on this vital aspect, academic life. They understood what a preeminent university is, and they gave all they could to the discipline, the great calling, the passion and mystery, the incredibly elegant adventure we call medicine.

Listening In: Dr. Meadowcroft's Talk

There are in fact two things, science and opinion; the former begets knowledge, the latter ignorance.

Hippocrates (460 BC - 377 BC), Law

Arthroscopy as a technique is now the standard for many orthopaedic procedures. But this was not always so. We, who have the advantage or disadvantage of many years since our graduation from Jefferson, have lived through a history in which knees were opened widely to perform meniscus surgery, ligament reconstruction, and lavage for infections. Recovery from these procedures was long and hard. Rehabilitation was nothing like today's. We were taught the standards of our time, and expected to practice these techniques. Yet, somewhere and somehow, we have come to see these teachings as only a basis on which to establish new techniques and expand our knowledge.

In searching for the origins of the concept of arthroscopy, I have come to see the truth of the statement that there are really no new ideas, just old ones that finally find their time to shine and be accepted. A recently discovered paper witnesses to arthroscopic activity in 1912. The Proceedings of the 41st Congress of the German Society of Surgeons at Berlin in that year contain a presentation entitled "Endoscopy of Closed Cavities by the Means of My Trokart-Endoscope." The author was a Danish surgeon from Aarhus named Severin Nordentoft. Dr. Nordentoft had constructed an endoscope similar to the Jacobaeus thoracoscope, consisting of a trocar 5 mm in diameter, a fluid valve, and an optic tube. In addition to suprapubic cystoscopy and laparoscopy, he advised the use of such an endoscopic device in the knee joint, especially for early detection of meniscal lesions. He baptized the procedure "arthroscopy" and gave a vivid and credible description of the handling of the instrument, and the view of the anterior region of the knee, including the articular cartilage, synovial lining, villi, and plicae. He used sterile saline as the optical medium. Unfortunately, he did not express clearly if he performed arthroscopy on patients or on cadaver knees. This is the only known paper or presentation by Severin Nordentoft on the topic of arthroscopy. In the following years, his interests changed to radiotherapy, and today Danish radiologists remember him as a pioneer in x-ray treatment of mammary carcinoma and brain tumors. Although his pioneering work in arthroscopy was overlooked, the birth of this procedure must now be attributed to him.

Watanabe in the late fifties and early sixties, in Japan, appears to have been the spark that ignited the English-speaking world to the wonders of arthroscopy. He influenced three pioneers in the Philadelphia area, including Phillip Marone '57 at Jefferson/Methodist Hospital.

My own primary experience and knowledge came from two men who were outside the mainstream of orthopaedic thought at the time, Dr. Lanny Johnston in Michigan and Dr. Robert Metcalf in Utah. These pioneers created instruments and techniques for modern operative arthroscopy and were interested in transferring their knowledge to others. It was thrilling to brainstorm within these programs, and generate new ideas.

But one had to return to reality. In academia the prevailing thought was that the arthroscope was a gimmick and really only useful in perhaps looking inside a joint as a diagnostic procedure. I remember pleading my case before the operating room committee and the orthopaedic department of a well known hospital early in my career, and being summarily turned down. If there were to be a program that included arthroscopy both diagnostic and operative, I had to personally purchase the instruments, introduce them to the operating room, and become a bit of a thorn in the side of the establishment.

But it was only a matter of a few months, after my forging ahead with using the arthroscope as an important tool in my practice, that the establishment was asking if it might be possible to use my instruments in their own practice. It was bittersweet to turn the other cheek, but it did lead to the rapid upgrade of instrumentation and our abilities to serve our patients better, once the hospital began the purchasing of equipment.

There has been a tremendous development of arthroscopy since its reintroduction to North America in 1965. Since the early eighties it has been an important part of orthopaedics. Virtually every joint can be examined with an arthroscope. Apart from the diagnostic possibilities, an increasing number of arthroscopically guided surgical operations are possible. Knee arthroscopy can be used therapeutically for many conditions, including meniscal lesions, refractory synovitis, cruciate ligament lesions, tibial plateau fractures, and osteochondral defects; in the shoulder it can be applied to lesions of the glenoid lip or the rotator cuff; in the ankle and foot, for osteochondral fractures and creation of an arthrodesis; in the wrist, for treatment of instability, intra-articular distal fractures of the radius, and carpal tunnel syndrome; in the hip, for removal of loose bodies and in the spine, for the performance of discectomy. Advantages over conventional open operations include smaller proportions of complications, shorter hospital stays, and more rapid rehabilitation.

The influence of arthroscopy helped to inspire general surgeons and gynecologists to explore laparoscopy. Vascular surgeons now look into areas with an ability never dreamed of. The use of fiber optics, smaller and smaller TV cameras, Wolf scopes with Hopkins lens systems, and better and smaller operative instruments has established a new norm.

We must always keep an open mind toward new ideas. Our actions can aid progress or they can cut it off before its time.

The 55th Campaign

James W. Fox IV '70, Chairman, Annual Giving

It's my pleasure to report that 4,592 alumni, faculty, and friends contributed $1,975,621 to the 55th Annual Giving campaign. This is by far the largest number of contributors in the history of Annual Giving and is a clear indication of widespread support for Jefferson Medical College and its commitment to education and research. We are deeply grateful to our supporters for their generosity.

Special thanks go to the members of the President's Club and its chairman, Jerome M. Cotler '52 for leading the way in this campaign as they have in past campaigns. President's Club members contributed 48 percent of the total amount raised for Annual Giving.

We are indeed fortunate to have an excellent network of Annual Giving class and department agents. The results of their hard work are at the heart of every successful Annual Giving campaign, and all of them deserve our appreciation and thanks. Several classes and departments and their agents stand out for special recognition.

For the fourth year in a row, the Class of '57 took first place for the amount given ($75,645) to Annual Giving. Many thanks to the class and their agent, Phillip J. Marone, for a fine effort. The Class of '78 is the one to top in number of givers. Under the leadership of agent Duncan Salmon, they are in the number one spot yet again with 104 contributors. Keep up the good work!

Percentage of participation is counted from the 50th reunion class forward. Top honors for participation go to the 50th reunion Class of '53 and their agents, Robert Poole and Joseph J. Armao. Of the class, 74.8 percent made a contribution to the 55th campaign and we thank them for their support. The Class of '54 and agent John R. Patterson deserve mention and thanks for following closely on the heels of the Class of '53, with 74.5 percent of the class participating.

Congratulations are in order for our postgraduate alumni and their Annual Giving agents for topping their previous record in both number of givers and amount given. 500 PGAs contributed $200,655 to the 55th campaign. Our PGAs have now participated in Annual Giving for 10 years and have raised over $1 million for Jefferson. The Department of Dermatology took first place in both amount given ($59,350) and percentage of participation (39 percent). We thank them and their agent, Anthony F. Santoro D'00. The Department of Medicine had the greatest number of contributors (89), and we are grateful to them and their agents, Mark G. Graham IM'81 and Francis X. Keeley IM'60.

Our nongraduate faculty, who give so much to Jefferson in the classroom and the laboratory, also gave generously to Annual Giving. Under the leadership of their agent, David C. Levin MD, 121 nongraduate faculty members raised $60,156 for the 55th campaign. Our thanks go to all of them.

The Class of 2003 has joined our ranks as proud alumni of Jefferson Medical College. The Alumni Association will need their leadership in the future, and I am confident that we can depend on their creativity, generosity and plain hard work. I am happy to introduce the agent for the Class of 2003 – Maria C. Palatucci. She wasted no time in preparing to write to her classmates on behalf of Jefferson and Annual Giving, and I know that we can expect great things from her class.

Our leaders at Jefferson have inspired us with their vision of the school on its 200th anniversary in 2024. We would not be poised to turn that vision into a reality if Jefferson were not the strong institution that it is today. The loyalty and generosity of our alumni, faculty and friends in the past have helped to prepare Jefferson for even greater achievements in the future. For all that you do for Jefferson, please accept my thanks and the thanks of President Brucker and Dean Nasca.

The President's Club

Members of the President's Club continue to lead the Annual Giving campaign. Fellows have made cash gifts of $50,000 or above over more than one year; the Winged Ox Society, one-time gifts of $10,000 to $49,999; the Jefferson Associates, gifts of $5,000 to $9,999; the Jefferson Society, gifts of $2,500 to $4,999; and Sustaining Members, gifts of $1,250 to $2,499. Those who supported the Medical College through Annual Giving are listed below with deepest appreciation for their generosity and loyalty.

Cornerstone Award Is Presented to Connelly Foundation at President's Club Dinner

The prestigious 2003 Cornerstone Award of the Jefferson President's Club was presented to the Connelly Foundation at this year's President's Club Dinner, which honors Jefferson's most generous and loyal benefactors. The festivities were hosted by Thomas Jefferson University President Paul C. Brucker MD and his wife, Joan, to thank major donors to the university and hospital for their support. The event, attended by 280 guests, was held at The Crystal Tea Room in Center City Philadelphia on October 24.

James Stratton, a university trustee and Chairman of the Institutional Advancement Committee, served as the evening's master of ceremonies. Mr. Stratton observed, "Thomas Jefferson's legacy continues to encourage us to move ahead, fulfilling the promise of our forefathers, here in the city where it all began." The Histones and the Arrhythmias, JMC student and resident a capella singing groups, which performed together for the first time, sang "The Star Spangled Banner."

In making the Cornerstone Award presentation, Dr. Brucker said: "We are very honored to give this distinguished award to the Connelly Foundation for its outstanding and enduring support. When called upon, this wonderful foundation has stepped in to help us meet our needs. Its support for both the university and hospital has not only benefited Jefferson, but it has changed the face of the city of Philadelphia, the Delaware Valley, and beyond."

Dr. Brucker also acknowledged past Cornerstone Award recipients who were at the dinner, including Vickie and Jack Farber (2002); Mr. Stratton, a director of the Percival E. and Ethel Brown Foerderer Foundation (1981 and 1994); Mary L. Smith (1983); Gail Davis, widow of J. Wallace Davis '42 (1978); JMC Alumni Association members (1997); and members of the Women's Board of Thomas Jefferson University Hospital (1980).

Paying tribute to the contributions the Connelly Foundation has made to Jefferson programs, Dr. Brucker introduced a video presentation, "A Legacy of Giving," which highlighted the foundation's commitment to Jefferson's mission.

Dr. Brucker was joined at the podium by Thomas J. Lewis, Chief Executive Officer and President of Thomas Jefferson University Hospital, to present the Cornerstone Award resolution and traditional bronze statue of Thomas Jefferson to Mrs. Josephine Mandeville and Mr. Thomas Connelly, trustees of the Connelly Foundation. Also invited to the podium for the presentation were representatives of programs that the foundation has supported, which were featured in the video, including Thomas J. Nasca '75, University Senior Vice President and Dean of Jefferson Medical College; Barry Goldberg MD, Professor of Radiology, Vice Chairman of Research, and Director of the Division of Ultrasound; James Plumb '74, Clinical Associate Professor of Family Medicine, Faculty Advisor for JeffHOPE, and Director of the Center to Advance Population Health; Anthony DiMarino MD, the William Rorer Professor of Medicine and Director of the Division of Gastroenterology and Hepatology; Karol Kaltenbach PhD, Clinical Associate Professor of Pediatrics, and Psychiatry and Human Behavior, and Director of the MATER program; Lara Weinstein '95, a founding member of JeffHOPE; Seth Hollander, Director of the JeffHOPE Gateway Clinic, and a fourth year JMC student; and Mary Ann McGinley PhD, Senior Vice President for Patient Care Services and Chief Nursing Officer, Jefferson Hospital.

Sixteen donors were named Fellows of The President's Club in recognition of cumulative giving of $50,000 or more, while another 14 benefactors became members of The Winged Ox Society, having contributed $10,000 or more to Jefferson during the last fiscal year. Douglas J. MacMaster Jr., Esq., Chairman of the University Board of Trustees, assisted in the recognition of these benefactors.

New Fellows, who received gold-headed physicians' canes symbolizing healing and acknowledging enduring philanthropy to Jefferson, are J. Edward Berk '36; Mrs. Elaine Burden (widow of Samuel S. Burden '35); E. J. Catterson MD/PhD'03; Eui K. Chung MD; Harry R. Cramer Jr. '71; James E. Culbert '57; Jack W. Fink '54; Catherine and William Frankel; Mr. Brian G. Harrison; Nancy A. and Donald F. Jones; Mr. Jerrel K. Ralph; Joseph P. Ravin '56; John P. Salvo '61; Frank J. Szarko '66; Richard S. Tenn '50; and James Donald Wentzler '46.

New members of The Winged Ox Society, who received pins to recognize their generous support of Jefferson, are Mr. and Mrs. Harold Baxter; Mrs. Jayne Black; Mr. Bradley and Gudrun Cobb UCM'96; Richard E. Eshbach '58; John Fort RHU'86; Marina A. Grace; August F. Herff Jr. '53; Young Chai Kauh D'71; Mr. Donald Meads; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Schwarzman; Stephen D. Silberstein MD; Ms. M. Doris Stelmach; Coe T. Swift '37; and Herbert M. Wolff '36.

Dr. Brucker thanked donors for their extraordinary philanthropy, and emphasized how critical generous benefactors like those at the dinner are to the future of Jefferson. "Private support enables an academic medical center like ours to advance to the next level of excellence," he stated, "particularly in a challenging economic climate such as we find today."

Is It Time for a Financial Checkup?

Are you doing all you can to protect your financial health?

Do you have a will? Is it up to date?

A properly drafted will is the foundation of your planning and can provide long-term security for those who are important to you. Without a will, the laws of your state determine who will receive your property after you are gone, and this may not reflect your preferences or the needs of those you want to benefit. Moreover, an outdated will that does not reflect your current wishes and circumstances may result in an undesirable distribution.

Have you considered a life income gift?

A charitable trust or charitable gift annuity can provide a current income tax deduction, increased cash flow for yourself and/or your loved ones, and enable you to minimize the bite of capital gains tax.

Create a legacy

*Remembering Jefferson in your life income gift or in your will can help you achieve your financial goals. Your generosity also will help new generations to benefit from Jefferson's excellence and will entitle you to membership in The Jefferson Legacy Society.*
